

This map is a display of the total radiation count (total count) measured during the NURE surveys of Alaska. This measurement does not distinguish between the various possible sources (such as uranium, potassium, and thorium) for this radioactivity. The image is illuminated by an artificial sun shading from the northwest.